Pilot crashes, dies after running into heavy fog

A 52-year-old man died on Saturday when the plane he was piloting crashed near La Crete Airport.

Mounties were later notified that the crash site had been found a few kilometres from La Crete airport. The RCMP and Transport Canada are investigating.

Amusement park lies on route of southeast LRT

Path of progress. Council to debate expropriation on Monday

ryan.tumilty@metronews.ca

The southeast LRT will have to cross a different type of track on its way downtown, as a south-side amusement park and go-kart track stand in its path.

City council's executive committee will debate starting the expropriation process on three properties on the route's proposed line, including the Whitemud Amusement Park.

Southeast LRT

- Council has already approved an LRT route from Mill Woods Town Centre to Churchill Square.
- The line is budgeted at $1.8 billion, with the city's share being $800 million and the rest coming from the federal and provincial governments, who have not yet committed the cash.

- Once funding is secured, the LRT will take about three years to build. It will take another six months to commission it for regular use.

A report going to the executive committee says the city has tried to buy the property but the two sides have been unable to come to an agreement.

Coun. Amarjeet Sohi said it's unfortunate a deal hasn't been reached on the property, but he believes the city will act fairly.

"We want to make sure that we are fair to everybody involved. We understand the impact on business," he said.

Sohi said the ideal solution would have been to create an LRT right-of-way decades ago, but now it has to move ahead and, unfortunately, there will be some dislocation.

"We need to continue to move ahead on the LRT and it is unfortunate that the LRT is going through established neighbourhoods and established industrial areas."

Sohi said if council goes ahead with the expropriation, he is hopeful a deal can still be reached with the owner.

If the owner objects to expropriation, there is a mandated provincial inquiry that looks into all the circumstances of proposed land takeovers.

When contacted, the general manager of the park declined to comment and said only that the discussions were very early.

The challenges of premature births

Unpredictable.

Canadian Premature Babies Foundation hopes to raise awareness about issue

ryan.tumilty@metronews.ca

When Katharina Staubs brought her twins into the world, she could hold each of them in one hand.

Born in 2008, and 13 weeks premature, her one boy and one girl were tiny, less than two pounds each, and Staubs said it was hard to cope.

"That was an experience that was very difficult because you don't know if your children are going to live," she said. "It is really hard when you see your child bandaged up on a breathing apparatus."

Staubs is president and founder of the Canadian Premature Babies Foundation and said she hopes to raise awareness about challenges both babies and parents face over relatively simple things.

"It is hard to bond, because often you aren't really even able to hold your child."

Dr. Ernest Phillipos, a neonatologist at the Stollery, said some risk factors for premature births include the age of the mother, diabetes and obesity in pregnancy, as well as smoking, but most premature births are unexplained.

"Two-thirds of them are just spontaneous and we can not predict them," he said.

Phillipos added that premature babies face an uphill battle and lengthy hospital stays.

"What we tell parents when a baby is born prematurely is that ... they are likely to stay in hospital."

Premature births

- Highest in the country. One in 10 babies in Canada is born prematurely, which is any point earlier than 37 weeks of gestation. Alberta's rate is the highest in the country, about one per cent above the national average.
- Borderline cases. Babies born 23 to 25 weeks are generally considered borderline cases, and have a high mortality rate.

Eleven civilians killed in fierce Israeli attack on Gaza City

Escalating conflict.

Missile strike amounts to single deadliest incident of current operation

An Israeli missile flattened a two-storey house in a residential neighbourhood of Gaza City on Sunday, killing 11 civilians, mostly women and children, Palestinian medical officials said, as Israel expanded a military offensive to target homes of wanted militants.

The attack, which Israel said targeted a militant, was the single deadliest incident of the five-day-old Israeli operation and hiked a toll Sunday that was already the highest number of civilians killed in one day, according to Gaza medics. The bloodshed is likely to raise international pressure for a ceasefire, with Egypt taking the leading role in mediating between Israel and Hamas.

U.S. President Barack Obama said he had been in touch with the leaders of Israel, Egypt and Turkey in an effort to halt the fighting. "We're going to have to see what kind of progress we can make in the next 24, 36, 48 hours," he said.

Obama cautioned against a potential Israeli ground invasion into Gaza, warning it could only deepen its death toll. At the same time, he blamed Palestinian militants for starting the round of fighting by raining rockets onto Israel, and he defended Israel's right to defend itself.

"Israel has every right to expect that it does not have missiles fired into its territory," Obama said in Thailand at the start of a three-nation tour in Asia.

An Israeli envoy arrived in Cairo on Sunday and held talks with Egyptian officials on a ceasefire, according to Egyptian security officials and Nabil Shaath, a top aide of Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas who was in the Egyptian capital.

But Israel and Gaza's militant Hamas rulers remain far apart on any terms for a halt in the bloodshed, which has killed 70 Palestinians — including 36 civilians, according to Gaza health officials — and three Is-

Gaza militants continued their barrage of rocket fire at

Israel, firing more than 100, including two at Tel Aviv. More than 10 Israelis were injured by shrapnel, two moderately, according to police spokesman Mickey Rosenfeld. Israel's "Iron Dome" rocket-defence system shot down at least 30 rockets, including the ones aimed at Tel Aviv.

Syrian gunfire draws shelling from Israel

Israel shelled Syrian fighters after gunfire from their civil war spilled over to the Israel-controlled Golan Heights, the military said Sunday, as the conflict appeared to inch closer to the Jewish state.

The civil war in Syria has renewed tensions in the Golan Heights, a strategic plateau that Israel captured from Syria in the 1967 war. Despite constant hostility between the two countries, Syria has been careful to keep the border quiet since the 1973 Mideast war.

In recent days, Israeli troops have fired into Syria twice before, responding to what appeared to be stray mortar shells exploding in Israel-held territory. On Sunday, an Israeli military spokesman said soldiers fired artillery toward the source of gunfire late Saturday night.

Speaking on condition of anonymity according to protocol, the spokesman said the military identified a hit. He did not know if the targets were Syrian rebels fighting to topple President Bashar Assad or forces loyal to him.

While it is widely believed that Assad does not want to pick a fight with Israel, some in Israel warn that if his situation becomes desperate, the embattled Syrian leader might try to draw Israel into the fighting as a distraction.

MacKay calls on Russia to exert influence in Syria

Call to action.

Ongoing threat of war in the Middle East at the forefront of global forum of 300 delegates from 50 countries

Defence Minister Peter MacKay called on Russia on Sunday to exert influence to end the Syrian civil war, accusing Russia of standing on the sidelines while Syria is "coming apart at the seams."

MacKay told a press conference at the Halifax International Security Forum that Russia — one of Syria's most important allies — should use its weight to end the conflict.

"We know in Syria there are countries like Russia that could be far more proactive, who could exert considerable influence and use their weight with (Syrian President Bashar Assad's) regime to end the violence," MacKay said just after giving his closing remarks at the three-day conference.

"If Russia truly wants to be embraced as a democratic, productive member of the world community, this is a time for them to show the right stuff."

Russia has backed Syria at the United Nations Security Council by repeatedly vetoing resolutions aimed at pressuring the Syrian government to end the war.

MacKay said Prime Minister Stephen Harper has recently met with Russian President Vladimir Putin but did not go into the details of the discussion. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rescue efforts. Pilot dead, several seriously injured in plane crash

Rescue crews on snowmobiles had to beat a path through thick bush in northern Manitoba on Sunday to reach the survivors of a fatal plane crash that took place over the weekend.

Low cloud cover meant a rescue aircraft was unable to reach seven people who were injured after a plane en route to Winnipeg from Snow Lake, Man., went down just after 10 a.m. local time on Sunday.

Authorities said a Cessna 208 Caravan went down in a remote area about 10 kilometres from Snow Lake, which is some 700 kilometres north of Winnipeg.

Police said the pilot, a 40-year-old man from Snow Lake, was killed and that seven others were injured, some seriously.

RCMP, volunteer firefighters, wildlife officers and other locals had to use snowmobiles to reach the scene.

The injured were brought to a small health centre in Snow Lake, but poor visibility at the time meant that medevac flights that would have carried them to larger hospitals couldn't land.

RCMP spokeswoman Sgt. Line Karpish said a passenger on the plane used a cell-phone to call 911 and alert authorities about the crash.

She said many people in the community chipped in to help with the rescue.

Factory women

Workers exposed to toxic chemicals face cancer risk: Study

Women in Windsor, Ont.'s plastic automotive parts factories have complained of pungent fumes and dust that caused nosebleeds, headaches, nausea and dizziness. Some spoke of smouldering blobs of plastic dumped directly onto the floor near where they worked.

"People were getting sick, but you never really thought about the plastic itself," said Gina DeSantis, who has worked at a plant near Windsor.

A newly released six-year academic study draws a striking conclusion: Women employed in the automotive plastics industry were almost five times as likely to develop breast cancer, prior to menopause, as women in a control group.

The Catholic group Civitas organized Sunday's march by several thousand people carrying pro-family banners. Several Femen activists turned up topless and chanted "in gay we trust."

That prompted several anti-gay-marriage protesters to hit the Femen members and push them to the ground. On Saturday thousands took to the streets in cities across France to protest the draft law, which could see marriage and adoption legalized for gay couples early in 2013.

San Francisco. City may toughen public nudity laws with Tuesday vote

San Francisco may be getting ready to shed its image as a city where anything goes, including clothing.

City lawmakers are scheduled to vote Tuesday on an ordinance that would prohibit nudity in most public places, a blanket ban that represents an escalation of a two-year tiff between a devoted group of men who strut their stuff through the city's famously gay Castro District and the supervisor who represents the area.

Supervisor Scott Wiener's proposal would make it illegal for a person over the age of five to "expose his or her genitals, perineum or anal region on any public street, sidewalk, street median, parklet or plaza" or while using public transit.

A first offence would carry a maximum penalty of a $100 US fine. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gay pride exempted

Exemptions would be made for participants at permitted street fairs and parades, such as the city's annual gay-pride event.

- A third violation could see a $500 fine and a year in jail.

- "I don't think having some guys taking their clothes off and hanging out seven days a week at Castro and Market Street is really what San Francisco is about. I think it's a caricature of what San Francisco is about," said supervisor Wiener. The proposed ban predictably has produced outrage, as well as one lawsuit.

Santa Monica

Legal battle over nativity scene begins

The city of Santa Monica, Calif., has allowed an elaborate nativity scene in its Palisades Park each Christmas for nearly 60 years, but officials are ending the tradition this year after an atheist set up his own non-religious display and it caused an uproar.

Now, the churches behind the nativity are suing and claim the city violated their freedom of speech by stopping the tradition.

A court hearing Monday in Los Angeles could decide the fate of this year's nativity.

The churches want a judge to block the city's ban on private and unattended displays in the park until the case is resolved. The city is asking court to dismiss the lawsuit. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nunavut, where going to court can be an adventure

Cold justice. Court held in whatever building is available, sometimes with no heat, and it's too cold for court reporting equipment or even pens to work properly

Somewhere between tales of judges bunking with strangers and pushing airplanes out of the mud, it becomes clear Nunavut's court system works a little differently.

In the provinces, new courthouses are under construction and justice officials have embarked on electronic filing projects. In Nunavut, the community centres that serve as temporary courthouses don't always have toilets and Internet service is often non-existent.

Based in the capital, Iqaluit, the court system serves 24 communities across the vast 1.9-million-square-kilometre territory. So convening sessions of court requires packing up a twin-engine plane with a judge, a court clerk, an interpreter, their equipment and everything from first-aid kits to extension cords.

When the court party arrives in town, the weather might be cold, and there's often only one small hotel in each community. Reservations guarantee a bed, not necessarily a room.

"The hotels often will put other people in the other bed, so our judges have to ensure they take pyjamas because there's no guarantee it will in fact be someone of the same sex," said Nunavut Court Senior Justice Robert Kilpatrick.

The six judges of the Nunavut Court of Justice take turns travelling on the circuits, hearing everything from small claims cases right up to murder trials. They're the only judges in Canada to hear all three levels of court.

"Going to court in the North is truly an adventure and you never know what to expect," Kilpatrick said.

Society in transition

The territory, with a mostly Inuit population of about 33,000, experiences more violent crime per capita than anywhere else in Canada.

- The traditional role of the man as hunter and provider is fading away, leaving some men resentful about losing their place in society, Kilpatrick said. More Inuk women are becoming primary breadwinners.

"It's a society struggling to forge a new identity," Kilpatrick said.

- Suicide rates, particularly for teenagers, are far higher than in southern parts of the country.
- The rate of sexual assault is 10 times the national average, homicides 11 times and spousal violence 12 times.

"The workers impacted by this accident continue to be our primary focus," Hoffman wrote.

He said the body was found close to the leg of the platform, near where the explosion occurred, in about nine metres of water. He said the missing men were employees of oil-field contractor Grand Isle Shipyard.

The U.S. Senate Intelligence Committee chairman says Congress has ordered the Obama administration to explain who exactly created its talking points on the Sept. 11 attack in Benghazi, Libya, and who omitted the CIA's early conclusion that terrorists were involved.

Shopping. Stores bank on Black Friday going mainstream in Canada

The Canadian holiday-shopping season is looking decidedly more American this year as retailers schedule a rush of Black Friday events in hope that consumers will shop at home, rather than south of the border.

Black Friday, widely considered the busiest shopping day of the year, is timed to Thanksgiving in the U.S. It may just be a random November day for Canadians, but shoppers are increasingly buying into Black Friday and Cyber Monday, when online retailers hold their sales.

A CIBC poll conducted by Harris/Decima released Monday suggests nearly one in 10 of the 1,000 Canadian respondents plan on making a purchase during the sales period — suggesting that millions of Canadians will be shopping for holiday deals this weekend.

But Canada's version of Black Friday won't be everything it's hyped to be, some suggest.

"It's a myth," says retail consultant Jim Danahy of CustomerLAB. "Stores are not bringing merchandise in any sooner than they were before. They are not changing their promotional calendars. It is simply the super-imposition of a term that exists in the United States here." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Retailers challenge French naming law

Quebec. Language watchdog orders move to French names or slogans for retailers

Several major retailers are taking the Quebec government to court over the provincial language watchdog's insistence they modify their commercial brand names to include some French.

The six retailers are some of the biggest names in North America — Walmart, Best Buy, Costco, Gap, Old Navy and Guess. Their lawyers are expected in Quebec Superior Court on Thursday.

Quebec's language watchdog, the Office Quebecois de la Langue Francaise, wants the retailers to change their signs to either give themselves a generic French name or add a slogan or explanation that reflects what it is they're selling.

For example, Walmart, a household name on the retail scene that doesn't really have a French equivalent, could change its signs to "Le Magasin Walmart."

But retailers say the language laws have not formally been changed and they will ask the courts to decide whether the language office has the right to make new demands.

According to Section 63 of Quebec's French Language Charter, the name of a business must be in French. But it hasn't generally been applied to trademarked names.

CITY NEEDS TO BE QUESTIONED ON TAX INCREASE

URBAN COMPASS
Terence Harding
edmonton@metronews.ca

The city is proposing a tax increase at 5.5 per cent that is more than double the projected rate of inflation.

On its website, the city says that budget dollars go to "roads and public transit that move people; police, bylaws and fire-rescue services to keep people safe; parks, waste management and drainage to keep our communities clean and healthy; social programs and leisure activities."

No argument there. What I want to know is how much each of those individual items contributes to the 5.5 per cent increase. And how do they affect the increases in user fees that will go along with a tax increase? The administration wants to increase transit fares to $3.20 per trip, or by almost seven per cent. One more tax disguised as a user fee.

Here is what you could be asking your city councillor: How much does an increase in the rates of pay for city employees contribute to the increase in tax? What is the increase in specific areas that contribute to the 5.5 per cent increase? What cost-containment measures did the city undertake in the past year?

Digging up the truth

"I am hoping that there is at least one councillor who will take the time to ask the civic administration those kinds of questions. Maybe then we just might have a good sense of where our tax dollars are actually going."

Since the city is projected to grow by 1.3 per cent in the next year, why is a 5.5 per cent increase necessary? How much revenue was spent on things that do not really add to the quality of life in this city? The millions put into the Indy is a case in point.

I am hoping that there is at least one councillor who will take the time to ask the civic administration those kinds of questions. Maybe then we just might have a good sense of where our tax dollars are actually going. A good city councillor would also ask city departments to prove that they have made every reasonable effort to curb costs. Answers to those questions would be very interesting indeed.

Another question that doesn't have anything to do with the budget is why the city allows eyesores to flourish. This city will pass a bylaw on stupid initiatives such as banning smoking on playgrounds faster than you can kiss a duck. But when it comes to the derelict Ramsey Block on Rice Howard Way or the gaping hole where the Arlington used to be, it insists there's nothing it can do.

Maybe I'll try using that excuse if I get a ticket for not shovelling my sidewalk.

Obama kicks off three-day Asia tour

U.S. President Barack Obama and U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton tour the Wat Pho Royal Monastery with Chaokun Suthee Thammanuwat, a member of the temple, in Bangkok, Thailand, on Sunday.

The Temple of Reclining Buddha, formally known as Wat Pho, was the first stop on Obama's Asian tour that will also take him to Myanmar and Cambodia.

Obama arrived at the temple, one of Thailand's most famous temple compounds, to marvel at its centerpiece — a gigantic, golden statue of a reclining Buddha propped up on one elbow before passing into nirvana.

The visit was meant to give Obama a taste of Bangkok. Visits to see the king and the Thai prime minister were saved for later.

But one thing Obama did not get to see as he sped through Bangkok was the city's infamous traffic jams.

All roads leading to Wat Pho and his other destinations were blocked and cleared of cars as part of security measures that included bomb squads and shutting the temple to the public hours in advance.

Changing times

"This is not an endorsement of the government.... This is an acknowledgement that there is a process under way inside that country that even a year and a half, two years ago, nobody foresaw."

U.S. President Barack Obama on Sunday, before embarking on his landmark trip to Myanmar. He was attempting to assure critics that his visit was not a premature reward for a long-isolated nation still easing its way toward democracy.

Post-election trip

1st

Obama was set to become the first U.S. president to visit Myanmar, with Air Force One scheduled to touch down in Yangon on Monday morning. Though Obama planned to spend just six hours in the country, the much-anticipated stop came as the result of a remarkable turnaround in Myanmar's relationship with the U.S. For his first post-election trip, he tellingly settled on Asia, a region he has deemed as crucial to America's prosperity and security.

It's a hat trick for the Biebs

AMAs. Bieber shouts out to haters when he wins his first of three awards, while Nicki Minaj takes home two

Exclusively online

For more shots of entertainers from the show and a full list of the winners, visit metronews.ca/scene.

Justin Bieber and Nicki Minaj performed together — and separately — at the American Music Awards. They both were also both multiple award winners.

Bieber's wins included the show's top award, artist of the year.

The singer's mom joined him onstage as he collected the top award.

He looked to his mom: "I wanted to thank you for always believing in me."

The 18-year-old won also won favourite pop/rock male artist in the first award handed out at Sunday's American Music Awards and gave a shout-out to those who didn't think he would last on the music scene.

"I want to say this is for all the haters who said that I was just here for one or two years. I feel like I'm going to be here for a very long time," he said, also thanking his mom, manager, family and his "beautiful, beautiful fans."

He also won favourite pop/rock album for Believe. He gave a stripped down, acoustic performance of As Long As You Love Me, sitting down as someone played the guitar. He transitioned to the dance-heavy Beauty and a Beat, where Minaj joined him onstage, grinding with the teen for a few seconds.

Minaj repeated her AMAs wins from last year, picking up trophies for favourite rap/hip-hop artists and album for Pink Friday: Roman Reloaded. She was in an all-white get-up, including fur coat and pink hair when she performed her new song Freedom. The scene was ghostly and snowy, as a choir — also in white — joined her onstage. One background singer stole the performance, belting semi-high notes as Minaj looked on.

As Bieber won his second award, he was kissed on the neck by Jenny McCarthy, who presented the award.

"Wow. I feel violated right now," he said, laughing.

Bieber's red and black outfit seemed to be the night's theme, as Taylor Swift and Usher wore similar ensembles.

Usher kicked off the three-hour show with green laser lights beaming onstage as he performed a medley of songs, including Numb, Climax and Can't Stop, Won't Stop, which featured a smoky floor and a number of backup dancers, as Usher jammed in all black, with the exception of his red shoes.

No audience feedback for Community, but return is announced

In limbo. Show was set to be axed before NBC gave it reprieve, and star Joel McHale has confidence in latest episodes

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

The cast of Community is deep into filming the show's fourth season, but can't shake the feeling that something's missing.

No, it's not show creator and former show-runner Dan Harmon, who was quite publicly and unhappily removed from his post this past spring after the witty comedy failed for three seasons to take off in the U.S. ratings.

No, it's the fan interaction that's missing, at least according to star Yvette Nicole Brown.

"We of course feel the loss of Dan, but as far as our day-to-day life of doing a show, it feels the same," she says.

"The only thing that's missing is because we're not airing we don't have that third part of our little group, which is the audience telling us what they think. It's usually us making it and then we have our audience going, 'Yay!' or, 'Boo!' And we kind of course-correct.

"I'm the one, right when the show is on, if we're working, I go right on Twitter to look at the hashtags and see what they're saying, and Joel (McHale) is like, 'What are they saying, Yvette?'"

NBC, the show's network in the U.S., first ordered an abbreviated 13-episode fourth season of Community and then pushed it off the fall schedule, leaving it in limbo until it was recently announced it would return to North American audiences in February.

But when we visited the set, the cast was already filming the season finale. "I guess you miss the feedback if it were to have started to air, but I feel the episodes are good, so I'm not too worried about it," says McHale.

"With the forced hiatus last year and now the bumping of the date this year, I think it increases the fans' resolve."

The changes have also opened up new opportunities for the cast, particularly for Jim Rash, who plays Dean Pelton. For season three, Rash was promoted to series regular status as his bizarre character became more involved in the show.

And season four finds Rash, who won an Oscar for co-writing last year's The Descendants, writing an episode himself, an experience that made him "neurotic and freaked out," he says.

"All eyes are on you. It's like, how dare you think that you could possibly do this?"

But co-star McHale says not to believe the false modesty. "Winning an Oscar helps," McHale jokes. "He brought the Oscar with him to set. A lot of the time it would be like, 'Jim, I don't really understand this line,' and then he would just hold up the Oscar and go, 'Is that clear? Good.'"

Comedic chemistry

Who needs writers? Community stars Joel McHale and Jim Rash (himself an Oscar-winning screenwriter) prove in our interview that they'd make a dynamite comedy duo all on their own, often letting serious answers disintegrate into mock-insults and bizarre back-and-forths. Here's a sample:

METRO: What would you say is the strangest fan experience you've had?

JIM RASH: Well, seeing someone dress their kid up as Dean Pelton for Halloween, I guess is weird. Joel, you've probably had something weirder than I have.

JOEL MCHALE: I'm trying to think. There's inappropriate, but weird... There's never —

JIM RASH: I sent my sperm to one fan. Is that weird?

JOEL MCHALE: You did?

JIM RASH: She asked so nicely for it.

JOEL MCHALE: That's weird. That is weird. Don't do that again.

JIM RASH: What? I did it in private!

JOEL MCHALE: Well, I guess it's legal...

Glee's Murphy praises legendary Lear

Inspired. American Horror Story creator influenced by the innovative Norman Lear as pair are set to receive honorary awards

Glee co-creator Ryan Murphy didn't hesitate when given a chance to pay tribute to his American idol, legendary TV producer Norman Lear, at the 40th International Emmy Awards.

Lear's sitcom, All in the Family — and its spinoffs Maude and The Jeffersons — mixed humour with an honest examination of the key social issues of the day like racism, sexism, even abortion, rape and homosexuality. Decades later, Murphy is following the path blazed by Lear with his shows, Glee and The New Normal.

Murphy and Lear are to receive honorary awards at Monday night's International Emmy Awards Gala.

"I remember watching his shows when I was young and being moved by them," Murphy said of Lear from his production office in Los Angeles. "The way he tackled social issues so directly and opened a conversation about things no one wanted to talk about was fascinating to me.

"I try to do the same in my work, most recently with the Obama Mama episode of The New Normal, which was inspired by All in the Family."

At Monday night's ceremony, hosted by Regis Philbin at the Hilton New York Hotel, Murphy will be presenting the 40th Anniversary Special Founders Award to Lear, now 90, and MASH star Alan Alda. The organizers wanted to mark the milestone anniversary by honouring a producer and performer who had groundbreaking shows on the air in 1972, when the International Emmys were first presented.

"Each of them is an iconic person in the history of the television business ... who were part of that incredible vanguard of a new kind of socially relevant, often in-your-face, television programs that really did change the medium," said Bruce L. Paisner, president and CEO of the International Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, which presents the International Emmys honouring excellence in television programming produced outside the U.S.

To complete the circle, Jessica Lange, the star of Murphy's gothic contemporary TV series American Horror Story, will present him with the honourary 2012 International Emmy Founders Award. "In terms of being at the cutting edge of changes in our society, Ryan Murphy may be the most significant producer in the industry today. He is trying very hard to change the way people think in ways that get people to be more inclusive and tolerant," said Paisner.

A total of 38 nominees from 15 countries will compete for awards in nine categories on Monday. Paisner said the International Emmys have come a long way since 1972, when about 100 people gathered in a New York hotel for a modest ceremony.

Now, the academy presents International Emmys in 20 categories. More than 1,000 television industry representatives from around the world are expected for Monday's gala.

Mraz hopes gig will help Myanmar

Making history.

Singer-songwriter is first international artist to perform open-air concert in country since end of military rule

Jason Mraz will make history next month when he performs in Myanmar to raise awareness about human trafficking. Mraz will headline a free outdoor concert on Dec. 16 at People's Square in Yangon, at the base of Shwedagon Pagoda.

The Grammy-winning singer-songwriter is the first international artist to perform an open-air concert in the country since the end of military rule last year. And he is believed to be just the second Western act to perform in the country in decades, joining Ozomatli's U.S. State-Department-sponsored appearance in 2009.

"That's pretty exciting," Mraz said of the history involved, "and I'm going there with an enormous amount of gratitude and respect, and I hope we can actually make a difference. I hope it's also a testament to the songs. I've always wanted my songs to be about healing and self-empowerment, and if this is the way MTV is acknowledging that, then I am incredibly grateful."

The show includes local acts and is hosted by MTV EXIT, the music channel's initiative to raise awareness about human trafficking and exploitation. It will be broadcast on Myanmar national television and will air on MTV's international network in 2013. Mraz hosted a similar concert in the Philippines last year. He first became interested in the issue about four years ago when he attended the Freedom Awards, an annual salute to those working against human exploitation put on by the organization Free the Slaves.

"I thought this was something that was abolished when Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, but all it did is become hidden from our view," Mraz said in a phone interview from Zurich, Switzerland. "There was a recent estimate that there are about 27 million people enslaved on the planet, certainly due to hard economic times not just in the western world but certainly in Third World countries. Humans as a commodity is a great way to run your business. So I signed on, lent my voice, lent my music to the cause."

Rihanna Unapologetic about her Cockiness

Rihanna opened her show in Paris on Saturday, just as in Stockholm on Friday, with Cockiness — which is a fitting kickoff song, and it seems like the perfect way to describe her attitude while promoting her new album, Unapologetic (a title which is also in line with her current attitude).

The Paris gig at the beautiful Le Trianon theatre was a short one — only about 45 minutes due to an early curfew. However, the after-show party at exclusive club VIP on Champs Elysées did not disappoint. When the singer arrived around 3 a.m., she was joined by an entourage that included P. Diddy, Pharrell Williams, Omarion and Akon.

“We are here for Rihanna,” P. Diddy announced, “and she has a wish. Only hip-hop!”

The music changed instantly and the party got started.

Guitarist Nuno Bettencourt first made his name in the Boston rock group Extreme, but for the past three years he has been Rihanna’s go-to guitarist. He says he enjoys playing the more intimate gigs on this tour.

“I definitely see another side of her on stage,” he told me on the plane yesterday. “Tours tend to be overly choreographed. It’s not just the dancing, but where you walk and when to talk to the audience. Now I’ve seen her free to say exactly what she wants — even though it isn’t completely fit for children’s ears.”

Bieber pulls a Romeo outside Gomez’s gate... but with swear words?

Justin Bieber certainly seems to be trying to patch things up with Selena Gomez following their split two weeks ago — but it might be no use. After being spotted sneaking into the Four Seasons Hotel in Beverly Hills together Friday afternoon, the pair reportedly hit up Japanese restaurant Yamato in Encino, Calif. That outing, though, didn’t go so well, according to Us Weekly. “They had just sat down and didn’t order anything when they started to fight. Ten minutes later, they stormed out without speaking and she drove off in her car,” a source says, adding that Bieber followed her to her home but couldn’t make it past her gated driveway. He reportedly started yelling her name over the fence and began “swearing and yelling and lost his temper” when he realized he was being photographed. But all is not apparently lost just yet, as Bieber’s car was spotted still parked outside of Gomez’s house the next day. But that night, Gomez stepped out with gal pal Taylor Swift, who knows a thing or two about dealing with breakups.

Dear Taylor: Swift serving as resident love doctor for Seventeen

With an impressive number of failed romances under her belt — and the songs of heartbreak to prove it — Taylor Swift might be the last person you’d want to listen to for relationship advice, but Seventeen magazine is letting her do just that. Swift is serving as a guest advice columnist for the magazine’s December issue. “Remember that people have to fall in love with you because they want to, not because you want them to,” Swift writes. “Don’t chance ruining your friendship by chasing him before he’s ready. You just have to wait for him to turn it into something more, if and when he wants to.”

Imagine sitting at a restaurant and the person next to you starts cutting his or her nails. It would be exceptional, yet it isn't uncommon to witness a fellow passenger doing this on an airplane, where you are seated considerably closer to them.

Don't be that person. In fact, don't do anything with your nails — polishing, unpolishing, clipping, or biting. Particularly if they aren't your fingernails. Got a pimple or anything else you feel the need to squeeze? Leave it alone until you're in the bathroom, please. Something stuck in your teeth? Flossing and picking them in your seat is a definite no-no. Sprays of any kind (hair, perfume, spritzers) always have collateral damage. Feel a desperate need to brush yours (or your child's) hair? Don't do it. Refrain from putting on makeup, beyond a slash of lipstick.

Lastly? The pull down tray in front of you is not a baby's change table.

Massage rubbing off on parents looking to bond with their babes

Touch therapy. Take a little bit of time to help your little one relax — it has plenty of health benefits

life@metronews.ca

Spending just a few minutes each day massaging your baby can help to increase the bond, interaction and communication between the two of you. But how do you start? Tina Allen, an internationally respected educator, author and expert in the field of infant and pediatric massage therapy, shares her advice.

1. Choose the best time and place. Creating the best environment for massage is an ideal way to give yourself and baby time to relax. Choose a familiar place that is warm, quiet and with few distractions. The best time for massage is when baby is awake, healthy and happy. Some babies prefer the morning, while others prefer the afternoon or before bedtime.

2. Be comfortable. Relax, enjoy and have fun. Position yourself so that you are comfortable. Be sure baby is safe and placed on a soft area. Keep in mind that babies roll and become slippery when using oil. Be sure your hands are warm and clean before you begin.

3. Consider a massage oil. While it is not required, using oil can help make massages more enjoyable for some babies and parents. Olive oil and grapeseed oil are some of the best choices for infant massages. However, if you choose to use lotions, be sure to choose a nontoxic option, like Seventh Generation baby lotion, which contains olive oil as a main ingredient.

4. Listen in. Infant massages can be a wonderful tool for increasing your communication. Massage is not something that parents do to their baby, but rather with their little one. Listen to your baby. He or she will give you the signals to let you know his or her comfort level.

5. Know when not to massage. Never provide massage when your baby isn't

Benefits for baby

Here's how a massage can help your youngster.

- Increases brain development and growth
- Stimulates all systems of the body
- Aids in digestion
- Eases discomforts associated with gas, constipation and congestion receptive to it (when sleeping, crying or fussy). Avoid massage when your infant is ill, has a fever or infection, or if your little one has broken skin, a rash or bruising. Wait at least 48 to 72 hours following immunizations, and for a tummy massage, wait 30 minutes after eating. If your child has any special health care needs, seek further guidance as to what would be the safest approach.

How to dress (your kids) to impress

As a parent, sometimes it's all you can do to make sure your kid's clothing is clean, let alone fashionable. But your little one deserves to look his or her best. So we asked the stylists at U.S.-based Wittlebee, an online service that sends members a box of specially curated kids' clothing, for their tips on how to turn your child into your most stylish accessory.

Pick colours that work for their skin tones.

What colours look best on them? What washes them out? What colours bring out their eyes?

Invest in quality items.

No one wants to spend a fortune on expensive baby items when turnover is so high. But the best kids' wardrobes have a mix of moderately priced items, as well as several quality pieces. Then you can feel confident you'll always have something on hand for a fancy event or just a walk to the school bus.

Don't forget comfort.

Look at their body shape and think about what they should wear that is most comfortable for them. For example, leggings are best for babies who have chubby legs and overalls are better for those who have bellies so that their waists won't get pinched.

Add some flair to basics to make a statement.

You don't have to buy a crazy, zigzag patterned dress to make your little one stand out. Instead, go for a more elegant, blue pinstriped dress. If it's chilly out, you can layer this with a tiny cardigan and some solid leggings.

Dress your kids according to their personalities.

If you have an outgoing and fun child, go with bright colours and bold patterns. If they are more subdued and calm, maybe even a bit shy, it might be best to steer away from bold patterns.

Don't worry, you can add subtle flair with texture and a great, classic colour palette.

Flank steaks are lean cuts from the rear side of the cow and are characterized by rich, deep beefy flavour and a slightly chewy texture. For the weeknight home cook, flank steaks are the perfect cut. They can be tossed with a marinade the night before and left in the refrigerator until dinner. And they cook in just minutes on the grill or under the broiler. 'This is my hobby gone wild'

Nothing to wine about. Up-and-coming urban winery winning praise in unlikely zone

When you picture a winery, you might imagine a rustic building nestled among breezy rows of grapes, not a cinder block bunker squeezed between a rail switching yard and an urban highway.

But the gritty industrial zone that Pacific Breeze winery calls home, with its tangle of transportation lines, chain link fences and blacktop, hasn't stopped this urban winery from scoring a string of top awards only a few years after being launched by a couple of amateur winemakers.

"This is my hobby gone wild," said Pacific Breeze co-owner Maurice Hamilton, who founded the winery in 2005 with his partner, Frank Gregus, after the two met at a wine club in Coquitlam, B.C.

Hamilton, who still works at his original job selling dental supplies, and Gregus, a former Pepsi salesman, have no formal training in making wine, but between them claim more than 50 years of experience producing wine in their garages and basements. Running a commercial winery was only a dream, until Hamilton visited Woodinville, Wash., where he found small wineries operating without vineyards.

"It gave me the idea I don't have to grow grapes to have a winery. So that was really the a-hah moment, the revelation that, wait a minute, I can do this," he said, envisioning a stand-alone winery. He pitched the idea to Gregus, who was quickly on board.

"You put two entrepreneurial salespeople in a room and this is what happens," Gregus said.

With an initial investment of $1.2 million, including bank loans and some of their own money, the partners set up Pacific Breeze, inspired by the urban wineries they'd seen in the U.S. and the so-called "garagist" small winery movement in Europe.

Picking the New Westminster industrial area was a matter of zoning, price and convenience, but Hamilton admits it's a tough sell when they're trying to lure people in to sample their products.

"People come into the tasting room all the time and go, 'Oh wow, where's the winery?' And you know what they're asking is, 'Where's the vineyard?' Of course they think they're the same thing, but they're not. The vineyard is where you grow the grapes; the winery is where you do the manufacturing," Hamilton said.

The partners say having a vineyard can limit the quality of wine they can make, and their approach is to cherry pick the best grapes they can find in Washington, Oregon and California.

"So rather than have it all in one area, we take the best that each area has to offer for that particular variety of grape," Gregus said.

Harry Hertschag, executive director of the Vancouver International Wine Festival, said the key issue for him is the source of grapes is made clear on the label so consumers know exactly what they're getting.

"I think it's great that Pacific Breeze is doing that because they're telling you what vineyards its coming from and that's a good thing," he said.

He also sees a growing movement of having wineries that are closer to their marketplace.

"I think we're going to see more of these type of urban wineries, which also allow people to visit them, or be

Peculiar place to grow?

A surprisingly grape location

Last year, Pacific Breeze turned a small profit for the first time and expanded into space next door, confirming its commitment to its unlikely locale.

• "We're in a terrible location, we get that," Hamilton said. "To this day we have people come to us and say, Well, you couldn't make world class wines in New West. Why couldn't you if you've got the grapes? Because it's really about the grapes."

able to use those spaces for wine events without having to drive five hours to the Okanagan to have that experience," he said.

Hamilton and Gregus currently produce 5,000 cases a year, including reds like the winery's signature cabernet Killer Cab, a zinfandel called Assazin and whites like chardonnay and pinot gris.

Their wines proved an immediate hit, with Pacific Breeze claiming awards at the first competition it entered — in San Francisco in 2005 — before being named winery of the year in 2010 at the InterVin International Wine Awards in Toronto.

"Virtually everything we put in won best in its class," Hamilton said. "We were really proud of that."

"There's a thousand decisions that go into making wine from grapes to bottle," Gregus said of the company's awards. "But one thing that doesn't change is if you don't have great fruit you cannot make great wine."

Julian Brass started hosting events at a young age and loved bringing people together. After working in Florida and California, he decided to move back to Canada and start Notable.ca, an online resource for connecting young, driven, professional adults with elements relevant to taking their professional and social life to the next level.

During the startup phase, Brass was living in his father's basement with no income. Four years later, Notable.ca has a team of 25 people handling more than one million visitors a month.

I knew I was on my way when... we started to have repeat advertisers approaching us to work together again. You see, anyone can schmooze someone and close a deal, but when a reputable client returns, you know that you and your team are doing something right. That was an exciting feeling the first time it happened. Now, it's a regular occurrence.

Relishing in the repeat

Action Plan

• Cut out all the noise

If you truly want your business to succeed, you have to care more about it than anything else. Once you do, you'll get clarity and you'll go after your goal in a much more concerted way. At the end of the day, it's worth it.

• Set a goal and work backward

Envision yourself five years from now and work backward. That will give you a path. It will change, but it will at least get you moving forward.

• Effort and sacrifice

If it was easy, everyone would do it. For people to accomplish things that others haven't, you have to put forth a greater effort and sacrifice more than others are willing to give up. I can guarantee it will be worth it in the end and I would give nothing back for the ride I've had in the last four years.

No, I don't want no scrubs

Let's hear it from the boys. The doors are wide open for males to enter the nursing field, so where are the applicants?

BRUCE WALSH
life@metronews.ca

Chad O'Lynn has taught nursing at Montana State University and the University of Portland. In 2006 he co-authored the first comprehensive academic book on men in nursing. But his latest, A Man's Guide to a Nursing Career, is intended as a pragmatic introduction for men in the field or those considering it.

Is there still a big demand for nurses?

Yes. Even in a tight job market, we're facing a looming nursing shortage.

Can nursing be a good second career?

Definitely. In fact, there's research that suggests that men are more likely to come to nursing as a second career.

In the U.S., what percentage of nurses are men?

Depending on the source, it ranges from about 6.9 to 7.2

per cent. It's one of the most gender-imbalanced fields in the health profession.

Has that number changed over the years?

In 1960 it was one per cent. In the '90s it was around five per cent. So, not much, comparatively.

Is there a perception that most men in nursing are gay?

That's an unfortunate, damaging stereotype. There's no evidence to suggest that. Sadly, being gay carries a stigma in our society, so men may reject the idea of a nursing career because of it. My sense is that that perception is less of a problem today than it used to be. In years gone by it was a huge problem, and it was well documented in the literature.

Has there been a push by any major institutions to get more men in nursing?

The short answer is no. Men are not a minority group, so they can't be given preferential treatment in recruitment programs.

Sideline the stereotypes will prove imperative for this field's future. ISTOCK

Stamps' Glenn rises to West final test

CFL. Calgary quarterback will get championship chance after years of disappointment

At long last, Kevin Glenn is going to get a chance to play in the Grey Cup.

Glenn threw for three touchdown passes as the Calgary Stampeders upset the B.C. Lions 34-29 in the CFL West final on Sunday before a disappointed crowd of 43,216 at BC Place Stadium.

The Stampeders, who finished second in the West Division behind B.C. during the regular season, will play the Toronto Argonauts in the CFL title game next Sunday in Toronto.

The loss denied the Lions a second straight Grey Cup.

Glenn drew the starting quarterback assignment after

B.C. Lions quarterback Travis Lulay

Drew Tate fractured his forearm in last weekend's West semifinal win over Saskatchewan, ending his season.

Glenn has now earned a Grey Cup berth for the first time in his well-travelled, 12-year CFL career.

"It means a lot to actually be able to actually get a team there and actually be playing in the game," said Glenn.

He was denied the opportunity in 2007 after he led the Winnipeg Blue Bombers to victory in the East final but, ironically, also suffered a fractured arm. That year's Grey Cup, which the Bombers lost to the Saskatchewan Roughriders with Winnipeg backup quarterback Ryan Dinwiddie making his first start of the season, was also in Toronto.

Glenn, a 33-year-old Detroit native, was not expected to play much this season after being acquired in an off-season trade from Hamilton as part of the package for former Calgary QB Henry Burris.

Instead, Glenn played most of the Stampeders' games because Tate suffered an early season shoulder injury, and then was bypassed for the first playoff game.

Marquay McDaniel, Maurice Price and Romby Bryant caught Glenn's touchdown passes. Backup quarterback Bo Levi Mitchell ran for another TD, while kicker Rene Paredes supplied the rest of Calgary's points.

"The line gave me great protection and we were able to get behind their (defensive backs) and throw the ball deep and take some shots, and that's what we'll have to do when we get to Toronto," said Glenn, who completed 15 of 24 pass attempts for 303 yards.

Lions defensive back Corey Banks, on an interception, and receiver Nick Moore on a last-minute reception, scored touchdowns for the hosts.

Paul McCallum provided B.C.'s other points by kicking five field goals.

"It's a disappointing day," said Lions quarterback Travis Lulay, who completed 33 of 46 passes for 274 yards. "You just hate to come up short in the big one." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ray guides Argos back to Toronto

The Toronto Argonauts acquired Ricky Ray to get them to a Grey Cup game on home turf, and now they can say "mission accomplished."

A masterful Ray passed for 399 yards and dominated the ground game as the Argos stunned the Alouettes 27-20 in the CFL East Division final before 50,122 at Olympic Stadium on Sunday in Montreal.

"He took some big hits and hung in there," coach Scott Milanovich said of his veteran quarterback. "I thought he played a tremendous football game, but that's what he's here for."

"That's why he's the one we wanted."

The Argos will play in the CFL championship game for the first time since 2004, when they won their 15th Grey Cup with a win over B.C. Sunday's game against Calgary will be played in Toronto.

"It's been a long season for us, but we've stuck together and just played it one game at a time," said Ray, acquired last winter from Edmonton. "Now we've got the opportunity to do what we set out to do."

Ray threw a TD pass to Dontrelle Inman and Chad Kackert scored on a run. Swayze Waters added three field goals for Toronto, which had lost to Montreal in three previous East final meetings. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Raptors Calderon, Bargnani rise to Magic's challenge

Jose Calderon helped the Toronto Raptors get a key win — by getting Andrea Bargnani involved in the game early.

Calderon had 18 assists in Toronto's 97-86 win over the Orlando Magic on Sunday, while adding nine points of his own. Bargnani scored 17.

"I thought Andrea was playing with some bounce and passion," Raptors head coach Dwane Casey said. "Jose got him going and got him involved early. Jose is a leader. I cannot say how much I respect his game, his leadership, his heart."

Both Bargnani and DeMar DeRozan were hot early in the game as Toronto opened up a 10-point lead after one quarter.

DeRozan had 11 of his 20 points in the opening quarter. Bargnani added nine in the opening 12 minutes and finished with 17 points. He also had five rebounds, two blocked shots and two steals for the game. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ravens slip past short-handed Steelers

The Baltimore Ravens shut down Byron Leftwich, and Jacoby Jones supplied the offence they needed to grab control of the AFC North.

Jones returned a punt for a touchdown, Justin Tucker kicked two field goals and Baltimore beat the Pittsburgh Steelers 13-10 on Sunday night in another slugfest between two of the NFL's biggest rivals.

The Ravens (8-2) moved two games in front of the Steelers (6-4) by shutting down Pittsburgh's offence, which sputtered without injured quarterback Ben Roethlisberger.

St-Pierre keeps nearly peerless legacy intact

MMA. Montreal fighter 'had a lot of fun' in punishing return to octagon at UFC 154

Striking coach Phil Nurse took one look at Georges St-Pierre in the locker-room before his UFC 154 main event and had a flashback to April 2008.

"Somebody asked me in the locker-room, 'How's Georges looking?' I said, 'You know what? The last time I saw him like this is when he flattened Matt Serra at the same arena,'" Nurse told The Canadian Press.

"That was the (Serra) rematch and that's the last time I've seen him so nervous but itching to go as well, like, 'I just want to get it done quick.'"

At UFC 83, it took St-Pierre just under two rounds to reclaim his 170-pound championship belt from Serra.

On Saturday night before a loud and proud Bell Centre crowd of 17,249 in Montreal, it was longer and bloodier. But it proved to be convincing.

Returning from a layoff of 18 months and 18 days after reconstructive knee surgery, a relentless St-Pierre won a five-round decision over Carlos Condit to unify the welterweight title.

They each won a $70,000 bonus for fight of the night. St-Pierre, as the UFC's top pay-per-view draw, no doubt got millions more.

The judges scored it almost a shutout for St-Pierre: 49-46, 50-45, 50-45. But it was still a bruising, take-no-prisoners fight with St-Pierre pushing the pace from the opening. And the champion was in real danger in the third round.

Silva up next?

Montreal's Georges St-Pierre has now won 10 straight fights and not lost in more than five years.

- His legacy could be further defined in the next year. The GSP win likely means a superfight showdown with middleweight champion Anderson Silva.

"a blast."

"I was getting hurt, it was painful, but I had a lot of fun. I love my job," he added.

St-Pierre (23-2) said his knee felt fine, but being away from the cage for so long, he forgot the full-bore fighting experience.

"The suffering, this feeling of not giving up," he said.

After the fight, St-Pierre had a fat lip, cuts under both eyes and on the bridge of his nose, and a thick band of red abrasions and bumps on his shaved head.

While St-Pierre said he felt some rust, he essentially looked as good as new against a difficult opponent.

"It's huge. Tonight was a big, big night as far as his legacy is concerned," UFC president Dana White said of St-Pierre. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

You need to get tough with someone who has let you down once too often. It is becoming a habit and that's not good for either of you, so let them know this is their very last chance — and mean it.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Don't hide yourself away. Don't avoid being seen. The planets indicate you are going to be in the spotlight over the next few days, so you might as well get used to the idea. As ideas go, it's not so bad.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

You must get your affairs in some sort of order. You must bring balance to what even you can see is a chaotic situation. Your time and your energy are precious, so make sure you get the most from them.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You may be tempted to push your luck today, and maybe your gamble will pay off — and maybe it won't. Either way you are right to take the risk. Those who play safe rarely get anywhere worth going.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Let other people rant and rave if it makes them feel good. You know that raising your voice does not get things done. You know that actions speak louder than words. That's why you'll succeed today while others fail.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Don't push yourself too hard. In fact, don't push yourself at all. Most likely you will achieve more today by doing less, though as you tend to work harder than most other people "less" is a flexible term.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Others may say you are not trying hard enough but you must ignore them. What do they know about who you are and what your aims are? If you are happy with your efforts then nothing else matters.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

No matter what other people may offer you by way of reward or recognition, if their aims are not in harmony with your own you must turn them down. The fact is you don't need them and most likely never will.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

A friend or family member will suggest something today and your first reaction will be to reject it. That's understandable, but after a bit of reflection you will come to see they are right. Trust their judgment.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Anyone who thinks you are a bit of a cold fish will be proved wrong over the next 24 hours. Yes, it's true, you have been a bit distant of late but now you are ready to get involved and start sharing again.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

The Sun remains in the career area of your chart just two more days, so if there is anything you want to accomplish on the work front make an extra special effort now. Don't think about it, just do it.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

It may be true that all things are possible but they won't just happen as if by magic. The good news is you are highly motivated and determined to prove yourself — and you'll get your chance over the next few days. SALLY BROMPTON
